

KENSINGTON FREEHOLD ESTAT.

[illegible]

peculiarly graceful sketch in which Henri Lavedan

[illegible][illegible]

actively taking part in receiving streams of callers, and writing letters to the visitors. He was a member of Westminster House, and attended by postcard and telegram from personal friends, ex-religieuses, and working men's associations. A room had to be provided especially set apart for the reception of the Bureau officials and the Commissaires of the Legation. The first stages of the career for this remarkable Englishman were not without difficulties, but he was a man of energy and the vicissitudes through which he has passed. I am just 40 years ago since he threw up the Archdiocese of Chichester and his rectory in Sussex, to come to London, and to take up his abode in the Rue de Valenciennes. He was then in the prime of life—43 years of age—at the height of his popularity, and indeed, as his friends said at the time and since, was blessed with the prospect of becoming Archbishop of York. But in 1871, when he was 44 years of age, five years later, on the death of Wiseman, he became the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, and in 1873 he was made a Cardinal 19 years after. To-day wading on account of the geographical situation of the island, and the fact that the island is a right

[illegible]

 voting one, although his land is not a right other's extent, namely, 2000 acres. Is this just? I cannot be sure, but I think it is. I think it is that the possession of property does not constitute the true basis of voting for Parliamentary representation.
 I cannot be sure, but I think it is. I think it is purposes is different, and is akin to the representation in boards of directors of financial or insurance legislation for purposes of local or Government ought not to have been precedence to that for election of members of the House of Representatives.
 Upon these may give in case there be any difficulty
 about getting the Electoral Reform Bill finally passed has been long enough promised to the public, and is necessary. However, the negative principle voting for Parliamentary representation is not symon one side, and the other side, each man should have one vote.

I am, Sir,
 Yours faithfully,
 WILLIAM W. MAGILL.

[illegible]

The water supply is of an inexhaustible character. Dam No. 1, which is 23 chains from the cradle of the river, has a capacity of 100,000 gallons. From this dam a 12-in. duplex Worthington pump, with a 12-in. water lift, is run by a 10-hp. engine, and pumps 100,000 gal. into tank lead 35 x 5 x 5 ft., from which a 12-in. duplex Worthington pump, with a 12-in. water lift, pumps 100,000 gal. into tank lead 30 ft. above the tank. The tank holds 1,000,000 gallons; and No. 3 dam, which is 100 chains from the cradle of the river, also pumps the water being done by an 8-in. pump, also with a 12-in. water lift, into a tank holding 1,000,000 gallons.

From these tanks pumps are supplied with steam from a 10-hp. engine, and the water is pumped into the boilers, of which there are two 25 x 5 ft. of 12 in., each having five (six) tube ways. The boilers are of the Babcock and Wilcox type, and are used for economical firing.

A block-stem's shop 35 x 15 x 15 ft., an engine house 25 x 15 x 15 ft., and a pump house 25 x 15 x 15 ft., are situated on the ground, in which are placed the East of Niagara machinery covers a very large area. The machinery is situated on the ground, in which are placed the East of Niagara machinery covers a very large area. The machinery is situated on the ground, in which are placed the East of Niagara machinery covers a very large area.

at Westminster House, and distinguished by presence at the funeral of a friend, and a member of the same working man's associations. A room had to be specially set apart for the reception of the floral offerings that poured in. It is strange to look back on the stages of the career of this remarkable Englishman and the vicissitudes through which he has passed. It is just 60 years ago since he threw up the Archdeaconry of Chichester and his rectory in Sussex, to turn his back on the associations and religion of a life-time, and to go to the United States, 25 years of age—at the height of his popularity and as his friends said at the time and since with the prospect of becoming Archbishop of Canterbury beckoning him in the future. But 11 years later, on the death of Wiseman, he became Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, and Pius IX. made him a Cardinal 10 years after. To-

She had come among them, as I had gathered, a stranger and lonely, with no credentials save those required for a scholastic career: a timid girl-mother, whose boy had been thought in life-time writers of her halcyon days by the boys of the school, and who, simple as the valley folk; and when she told them in her soft low voice that all she asked was a home for their little ones, and the calm peace to be found in their rock-enclosed pastures, their hearts went out to her forlorn youth. The hard-featured, soft-hearted matrons, whose "muffled" the shrinking girl, whose maternal devotion touched their sympathies, and whose delicate there's extent, namely, 2000 acres. Is this just? I cannot be. It may, therefore, be laid down as a law that the purpose of the property does not constitute the true basis of voting for Federal representatives. Representation for municipal or local government purposes is different, and so is the representation for the purpose of financing the insurance and other institutions. It is a debate question whether the legislation for purposes of local government should not be left to have taken precedence to that for election to the House of Representatives. I am not sure that the Upper House may give in case there will any difficulty about getting the Electoral Reform Bill finally dealt with in that Chamber. Local government legislation is not a matter of principle, but it is a matter of expediency. However, the negative principle is that property should not constitute the true basis for the election of the representative representation in any system. I am not sure that the House should have a vote on this. It is a totally different thing.

I am, &c., WILLIAM W. MAGUIRE

[illegible]

Dan No. 1, which is 23 chains from the crusher battery, contains 5,000 gallons. From this battery a duplex Worthington steam pump throws water 100 ft. into the air. The water is then conveyed in a line, wrought-iron pipe to a 12 in. galvanized iron tank fixed 30 ft. above the battery. No. 2, containing 1,000 gallons, and No. 3, dan, which is for emergency use, are 20 ft. from the battery. The work being done by an tin pump, also, are 1,000 gallons.

The water pumps are supplied with steam from a boiler of which there are two 25 x 4 ft. in size, each having five (galley) tubes. The boilers are supplied with all modern appliances of economy.

A blacksmith's shop 36 x 19 1/2 ft., an oil house 20 x 12 1/2 ft., and pumphouses being also real features on the ground, it may well be realized that the "Hopkinton" machinery covers a very large area of land.

The machinery is well situated and well protected by a well situated to West Hillgrove. The machinery is

You will be taught in school, and you may depend upon it in a country like this, where it is very easy for every person to get a piece of land, and a good sized piece of land, it is important that when need

[illegible]

progress of regular work. Well, he could just the institution of arbor day by saying t
it was necessary in all the hard work of school
that there should be pauses, and they should ma

[illegible]

au/pla news-page1

[illegible]

